The future of special collections is emerging as a key issue for research libraries in Europe, North America and overseas. Once often regarded as somewhat marginal, in recent years special collections have increasingly been recognised as central to the research and teaching missions of major libraries. The renewed interest in their potential has raised a wide range of questions about the role and management of special collections. What do we expect of special collections and their curators? What level of resources should be allocated to them? How should those resources be managed? How can additional funding be obtained to develop them and services based upon them? How can the collections be better integrated into research and teaching programmes? What role should special collections play in the digital library environment? In this workshop, specialists from Germany, the Netherlands and from the English-speaking world will describe innovative solutions and share their expertise in the field. A key aim will be to encourage an exchange of ideas that might lead to practical co-operation.

1: 'To Have and To Hold': Collection building

Collection building has often been regarded as a key "core" activity for special collections, and one that has changed little over time. Former certainties are now being challenged. De-accessioning, for example, has become a topic of sometimes heated public debate. In an increasingly networked world, the need to "hold" physical material at all is questioned; those institutions holding special materials may feel they have a particular obligation to share them with others.

- 09:00 h Collection building for special collections (Chantal Keijsper, Head, Dep. of Information & Collections, Koninklijke Bibliotheek – Nationale bibliotheek van Nederland)
- 09:45 h Digitizing and sharing: one approach to the ethics of owning international collections - Dr. Alice Prochaska, University Library, Yale
- 10:30 h Collection building: Issues and Challenges – the speakers will lead into the discussion ...
- 11:00 h Coffee break

2: 'Setting out the Wares': Collection description and collection access

Networking technologies and innovative formats provide new opportunities for opening up access to collections. Now that the retro-conversion of the conventional catalogues of major research libraries is largely complete, new solutions to problems of collection description and collection access are being pioneered. Of particular interest are methodologies that allow improved access to "hidden collections" or open up full-text access to rare materials.

- 11:30 h Collection-level description: why and whither - Ronald Milne, Acting Director of University Library Services and Bodley's Librarian, Oxford
- 12:15 h Der zweite Schritt: die Vernetzung digitalisierter alter Drucke (The second step: networked digital access to early printed material) - Dr. Thomas Stäcker, Herzog August Bibliothek Wolfenbüttel

- 15:15 h Collection Description and Collection Access: *Issues and Challenges – the speakers will lead into the discussion ...
- 16:15 h free time or, city tour (optional)

3: Taking Responsibility for the Past: Cultural Inheritance in Weimar

It was no coincidence that the National Socialists chose to build their concentration camp at Buchenwald on the outskirts of a city that had come to symbolise not only the classical tradition in German literature, but also the Bauhaus and the eponymous Weimar Republic. As an historical and cultural location, Weimar acknowledges a dual responsibility for its rich and complex traditions, including their most uncomfortable associations. How can cultural institutions respond to the challenge?

- 18:00 h Sammeln in Buchenwald (Collecting in Buchenwald) - Prof. Dr. Volkhard Knigge, Stiftungsdirektor der Gedenkstätte Buchenwald
- 18:45 h Die Herzogin Anna Amalia Bibliothek nach dem Brand (The Herzogin Anna Amalia Bibliothek after the fire) - Dr. M. Knoche
- 20:00 h evening meal together - an option

Thursday, Nov. 24

4: For the Benefit of Users – Redefining the Role of Special Collections: User service

Almost universally, research library strategies will stress the need to place the interests of users at the forefront of their plans. But what are the interests and concerns of teachers and researchers? And what does the commitment to users mean in practical terms for special collections, for their organisation and planning and for the resources they need?

- 09:30 h From Treasure Rooms to Research Center: The Changing Role of Special Collections in the United States - Dr. Alice Schreyer, Director of the Special Collections Research Center at the University of Chicago Library
- 10:15 h Forschungsinteressen und wissenschaftliche Sondersammlungen (Scholarly research and special collections) - Prof. Dr. Bénédicte Savoy, Technische Universität Berlin, Institut für Geschichte und Kunstgeschichte)
- 11:00 h Coffee break
- 11:30 h Erlebnissräume, gebaut aus Erinnerungen. Die Sondersammlung als "Teaching Library" (Glimpses into the past. The lure of special collections as “teaching libraries”) - Dr. Hans Zotter MAS, Universitätsbibliothek Graz)

12:15 h User service : *Issues and Challenges – the speakers will lead into the discussion ...

13:00 h Lunch break

5: Resources and Resourcefulness: the Need of Additional Funding and Future Skills

If special collections are developing new agendas – and new organisational forms or technical solutions to address them – then what additional resources will be needed to realise the vision? That special collections will need to exploit the opportunities offered through fundraising is a truth universally acknowledged, but what will this mean in practical terms? And what skills and competencies will be required of the 21st century special collections curator?

14:30 h Fundraising for special collections - Richard Ovenden, Keeper of Special Collections and Western Manuscripts at Bodley's Library, Oxford

15:15 h Panel : Competencies / Education and Training for Careers in Special Collections - G. Jefcoate, together with R. Ovenden, A. Prochaska, A. Schreyer, Th. Staecker, H. Zotter
